The Algo Vision (New York Open Live Trading Room)

with Jeffery Boston Weatherford

For struggling FX and Futures traders who want to stop studying perfect hindsight charts, connect their analysis to live execution, and watch disciplined decision-making unfold in real time at the New York open....

Why I Created The Algo Vision (New York Open Live Trading Room)

- I created this room because trading education almost always stops exactly where traders need the most help. It goes quiet the moment the market is moving, risk is real, and a decision has to be made right now.
- This is for traders who understand the concepts but freeze, hesitate, or force entries the moment price is live. You can explain the setup beautifully after the close, but the candle is still forming and the plan falls apart.
- Charts look clean after the fact. Live markets do not. The purpose of this room is to let you see the decision process while price is developing, not after someone has already drawn the perfect arrows.
- This membership is about one thing: giving you a front-row seat to disciplined execution at the New York open, including the mornings when the best trade is no trade.
- You are not only seeing the trade. You are hearing the logic that creates the trade, manages the trade, or cancels the trade.

One honest point of context before we move on.

This is not a signal service, a copy-trading room, or a room built around forcing trades for content. Markets do not owe anyone a setup every morning. You will see winning trades, losing trades, scratched trades, and sessions where no position is taken at all. That is not a weakness of live trading. That is the honest texture of professional decision-making, and it is exactly what polished recap videos remove.

This tier is observation only.

This membership grants access to watch the live session and hear the reasoning as it is spoken. It is not a teaching tier, a Q&A tier, or a mentorship tier. During a live session my full attention is on the market and on managing real risk, and I am not obligated to teach, take questions, explain terminology, review your charts, or respond to chat. Any answer given during a session is a courtesy. It is not something this membership entitles you to. If you want direct instruction, questions answered, and a mentor walking through the mechanics with you, that is what the mentorship programs are built for.

If that's you, here's what awaits you inside The Algo Vision (New York Open Live Trading Room)

#1 Daily New York Open Live Sessions

Join me live each trading morning around the New York Stock Exchange open and watch the session develop in real time.

You will see how I approach the opening environment, what I am watching before the bell, when I become interested in a setup, and when the market simply has not earned a trade. No hindsight editing. The reasoning is delivered while price is moving.

#2 Real-Time Entry Reasoning

When a trade is entered, I explain the evidence behind the decision: structure, timing, confirmation, risk, and the specific conditions that make the setup actionable.

The objective is to help you understand the decision tree rather than memorize an entry price. Over time you stop asking “what did he buy?” and start asking “what had to be true before he bought?”

#3 Live Trade Management Updates

As the position develops, you will hear the real-time reasoning behind holding, reducing risk, exiting, accepting invalidation, or letting the original plan work.

Management is where most traders actually lose money, and it is the part almost no one shows you, because it is messy, uncertain, and impossible to fake after the fact.

#4 Opening Market Context

Every session includes the market information shaping the morning: overnight structure, premarket behavior, directional conditions, key areas, volatility, participation, and the evidence required for continuation or reversal.

You will see how context and execution work together instead of treating every pattern as an isolated signal.

#5 A Repeatable Observation Routine

Each morning gives you a consistent framework for studying live decision-making: what qualified, what was rejected, what was managed, and why.

Repeated exposure is the point. Over enough sessions you begin to recognize what clean execution looks like, and, more importantly, the exact moment where your own emotional shortcuts usually begin.

The Duration

Live sessions are held each trading morning for the New York Stock Exchange open, centered on the opening window and the real-time decisions that develop around it. Because market conditions and exchange calendars change, session availability follows active U.S. trading days.

Membership is month to month, so it can be as long or as short as you make it. However, we do recommend you commit to at least one full month of consistent attendance before judging your progress, and that you stay on paper trading accounts while you compare the stated reasoning against what price actually does. One morning is an anecdote. Twenty mornings is a pattern.

Get the most out of the room:

- Arrive ready to observe. Chart open, notes ready, comparing the stated reasoning with real-time price.
- Track the conditions, not only the result. A good decision can lose and a poor decision can win.
- Notice the passes. The trades I reject can teach just as much as the trades I take.

- Bring your questions to your own research. This room is observation only, so write down what you don't understand and study it after the session rather than expecting it answered live.
- Separate education from execution. Do not trade size or copy activity beyond your own plan and experience.
- Review your own behavior. Pay attention to where your impulse, fear, impatience, or overconfidence differs from the process being demonstrated.

The Investment

Just $99 per month. This covers observation access to the daily New York open live trading sessions, real-time entry reasoning, live trade management updates, and opening market context described in this overview.

What this membership includes:

✓ Daily live access to the New York open session for active U.S. trading days.

✓ The spoken reasoning behind entries, management decisions, exits, and passes as they happen.

What it does not include:

Personal instruction, guaranteed question responses, chart reviews, trade signals, copy trading, or one-on-one mentorship. This is an observation room. You are paying for a seat rather than for tuition.

Here's the reality...

A recorded strategy can show you the rules. Only a live session can show you how those rules behave when volatility expands, price hesitates, confirmation fails, and the market hands you incomplete information.

✓ Sit out one forced trade you would have taken out of impatience.

✓ Hold one runner an extra leg because you finally understand what invalidation actually looks like.

✓ Pass on one revenge trade after a red morning.

Any one of those mornings can be worth more than the monthly cost of the room. The habit is what you are actually paying for.

What You Are Really Investing In

You are investing in repeated exposure to the part of trading that cannot be captured by static lessons: live uncertainty.

The value is not one isolated trade. It is the accumulation of mornings spent watching a disciplined process confront a market that is never obligated to cooperate. That accumulation is why this is priced monthly. You are building a routine, not buying a product.

What Happens After You Join?

A few different paths are possible...

- You could watch passively. You may see interesting trades, but without notes, review, and deliberate practice, the lessons disappear as quickly as the session ends.
- You could study the process. Show up consistently, record the reasoning, compare the plan with the outcome, and identify the decision patterns that repeat across different market conditions.
- Or you could use the room as a discipline laboratory. Observe patience, risk, invalidation, and adaptation until those behaviors become more familiar than impulsive execution.

The purpose is not to make you dependent on someone else taking trades in front of you. The purpose is to help you see the market through a clearer decision process so you can become more deliberate in your own trading.

The Bottom Line

Every morning, the market asks new questions. Inside The Algo Vision New York Open Live Trading Room, you will hear how I evaluate those questions in real time: why I enter when the evidence is strong enough, why I pass when it is not, and how I update the plan as price develops.

If you're ready to study live execution instead of only polished hindsight, then I'm ready to trade the New York open with you.

Before You Pay Me Anything

I don't want your money if it is going to stress you out.

Stressful financial situations and trading do not mix. The odds in this business are already stacked against you. That is simply the truth of it, and paying with money you cannot afford to lose stacks them higher still. Every position you take afterward carries the weight of needing it to work. That is the exact condition under which traders oversize, hold losers, cut winners early, and revenge trade. I have watched it happen to people who had real talent.

Trading from a place of scarcity and lack does not work. The reason is mechanical rather than motivational: money you need back by a certain date forces decisions the market will not cooperate with. The market does not know your bills and does not care about your timeline.

So take your time with this decision. Go pray about it. Write it down and sleep on it. Talk it through with your spouse or partner. Anyone building something serious should be able to discuss a real expense with the person they share a life with, and if you cannot, that is worth sorting out first. None of that is weakness. It is the same deliberate judgment this education is trying to build in you, and I would rather you practice it here than learn it with a live account.

There is no discount for deciding today and no penalty for deciding next quarter. If the money is not there right now, the honest answer is to save it. Keep studying on paper, keep building your foundation, and come back when paying for this changes nothing about how you sleep at night. That costs you nothing but time, and it will still be here.

Come in because you are ready and it is comfortable. Do not come in desperate, hoping this fixes something.
